ELEVATED RAILROADS.—On this subject the Brooklyn Eagle says:

Of all the many plans we have seen for an elevated railroad, that of our townsman, Mr. Marcus D. Moore, commends itself to us as the most feasible. He proposes a line from the Battery to Central Park, along streets parallel to Broadway. The road to be constructed eighteen feet above the street, supported by a double row of iron columns, thirty-six feet high and a hundred feet apart, on a line with the curb-stones, and connected together with nine-inch wire cables. The track is laid half way up upon the columns, that form an arch across the street over head. The braces and guys to sustain and steady the cable are attached to the arch. In fact the road will have the appearance of the lattice work of a grape arbor, only far more open, the wire lattices being fifteen or twenty feet apart. The road will be formed on the principle of a suspension bridge, and so high as not to interfere with travel below. The columns will not incommode wagons or footmen, more than the lamp posts do now. The track being to a great extent open below, will not shade the street over which it passes, any more than the shrouds and rigging the deck of a ship. The whole structure will be light and elegant. The trains are to be propelled by dummy engines, which shall drop no ashes and consume their own smoke. Platforms are to be erected every few blocks for passengers to get on and off. The trip can be made from Central Park to the Battery in fifteen or twenty minutes, without having a person's clothes ruined with street dust, or having the digestion tasked to the utmost in converting all we inhale into a deposit of rich loam in one's stomach. Mr. Moore's plan has been submitted to some of the best engineers in this country, who have pronounced it eminently practicable. The plan has no doubt been submitted to our friend Pierson, of the Senate, and we are anxious to hear what he thinks of it.

THE New York World of January 26th says: It will be remembered by some of our readers that Rev. H. W. Beecher crossed the ice in 1856, and had a rather dangerous experience, which, it is supposed, was sufficient to cure him of any further wish to emulate Peter of old, whose unsuccessful attempt to walk the Sea of Galilee is generally known. Mrs. Beecher, however, not to be outdone by her husband, yesterday secured the company of Mrs. Moses S. Beach, and together the two attempted to cross the bridge. Captain Duncan, of Mr. Beecher's church, unable to dissuade them from the adventure, determined to accompany them, and imperiled his own life for their safety. The passage was a hard one, but gathering all their pluck, the ladies persisted in their course, and had gotten three-fourths of the way across when the ice near the shore began to break up. The danger of their position can be imagined, and they seemed fully to appreciate it. The excitement on shore was raised to boiling pitch. Apparently no means of escape was at hand. The ice all around them began to crack; then the cakes swayed fearfully. The crowd shouted to save them, the women ran wildly from one cake to another; ropes were thrown them which they failed to catch, and in the excitement it seemed that they must perish. At length, however, the tide forced the cakes on which they were standing close up to the dock, and with the assistance of those on shore the party were safely landed. It is to be presumed that their desire to cross the East river after such a fashion is sated by this time.

ARTEMUS WARD IN LONDON.—At the Egyptian Hall in London, says an English paper, Artemus Ward continues to deliver his 'goaks,' with a prosperity which belongs for once to the utterer, though the jests will considerably enrich the conversational treasury of those that hear them. The crowded state of the Hall since the American humorist began to "reveal," if we may be permitted to use a Wardism, has given an undeniable proof of the complete success of the eccentric lecturer in this country. The quaint sayings, so whimsically interpolated, and the old anecdotes, so dryly told, are received by successive audiences with increasing relish, and the anxiety to behold one who, having been "among the Mormons," has escaped with such perfect impunity the horrible fate of a plurality of wives, may not be without its influence in securing for Artemus such a notable share of patronage from the fairer half of the British public.

THE TURKISH MINT.—The chief mechanic in the Imperial Turkish Mint is an American, who has been employed there thirty years. The office during the past year seems to have been one more of honor than of pecuniary gain, as owing to the depressed condition of the country's finances he has not received any portion of his salary.

NEW PAPER.—It is stated that a company of six practical printers have determined to issue a new daily evening paper in San Francisco, to be called the Evening Dispatch.—Sacramento Union.

General Arthur P. Hayne, A. D. C. to General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans, and formerly United States Senator from South Carolina, died at his residence in Charleston (S. C.) lately.

Father Hpacinthe, the famous French preacher, who succeeds Lacordaire in fashionable religious oratory, is described as a fine looking man, about forty years of age. He is now lecturing at Notre Dame, in Paris.

FOUR tons of Idaho silver ore are on exhibition in one room in New York. One of the nuggets weighs three hundred pounds and is worth three thousand dollars.

Father Gavazzi, the anti-Popery lecturer, has not been heard of for six months, and a subscription in aid of a search for him has been started in London.

Mrs. General Williams (formerly Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas) is among the "observed of all observers" in Washington society this winter.

The claims of Charles Sumner for the next Presidency are advocated by the Newburyport (Mass.) Herald and New Bedford Standard.

E. R. Parker (colored) is announced as an independent candidate for Mayor of Alleghany City (Penn.)

Salt Lake City, November 3, 1866.

Report on Utah Affairs.

We are indebted to General Bidwell, M. C. from California, for a printed copy of a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting the Report of Brevet Brig.-Gen. Babcock. The Report covers a large space, including the observations of the writer at the several military posts from the Missouri river to the Pacific Ocean. We cannot say that it impresses the reader with either the profundity or literary ability of the author, while his self-assurance and perhaps pardonable egotism may be said to be very manifest. Referring to the selection of a site for a new Post, in lieu of Halleck, he says:

When in Denver the Quartermaster showed me the plans of the proposed military post on the Big Laramie plain; also plot of reservation and wood lot. Major General Sherman had spoken of this, and thought it a fine selection. I reached Big Laramie plains (the Stage station a little way from the reservation). A glance convinced me that it was no place for such a post as we wish to establish.

General Sherman, it may be inferred, though tolerably competent to lead an army "from Atlanta to the Sea," don't understand the requirements for a Post in the Indian country. A glance from Babcock's critical eye is sufficient to settle that question. His attention, he says, was called to a locality on the North Platte by one of the employees of the Mail line, who, he believes, is perfectly disinterested! Notwithstanding his earnest protets, General Pope, it seems, agreed with General Sherman, to Babcock's intense disgust, and went on with his Post at Laramie. Thereupon he breaks out in the following style:

I am now informed the post has (sic) or will be built at Big Laramie; that Major General Pope does not agree with me about the two places.

And then, with the peculiar modesty of this young man, he arraigns the Department Commander in the following manner:

I have only to say, I cannot see how General Pope forms his opinion, as he has never seen either place, and has no report of Big Laramie alone, except my own. * * * This injudicious selection of posts is what entails the army with such exorbitant expenses at frontier stations. * * * I reported to General Sherman my opinion of Big Laramie and North Platte, suggesting the change, and telegraphed to General Grant same day.

It is astonishing what obstinate chaps these old army officers are. Pope, Sherman and Grant seem to have been unmoved by the sage opinion of the Inspector, formed "at a glance."

After all this, we were not entirely unprepared for the graphic and lucid exposition of Utah affairs found in the "Report." Much the larger portion of this intensely interesting document is devoted to this subject. While in St. Louis the writer reported to General Sherman, (we don't exactly understand how it happened that Sherman didn't report to him, but it seems he didn't,) and he was shown that lively telegraphic correspondence between General Sherman and Brigham Young, last Spring.

He (Sherman) informed me that it was possible the Government might be compelled to force these people to obey the laws of the land. He wished me to remain in the valley of Great Salt Lake at least four weeks, to talk freely and often with Mormons and Gentiles—thus, if possible, to collect such information as would suggest a policy toward these people. I reached Great Salt Lake City June 19, and remained until the 20th of July. I met many of the Mormon people, as well as the Gentiles, and was treated with civility by both. Perhaps a detailed account of these people will be of interest. The sect known as Mormons is well known in the United States. The marked peculiarity of their religion is the claim of a religious right to have a plurality of wives. In other respects their religion does not offend public opinion. The present head of the church is Brigham Young, whom the Mormons believe inspired at times, through whom God reveals his wishes. He is acknowledged the head of the church and styled President, and is the "Trustee in trust of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints."

The Report then at considerable length rehearses the coming to Zion of the Saints, their devotion to agriculture, their industry in a dry and salt land, and tells us that the Mormons claim a population of 150,000, to which he very discreetly adds an interrogation mark, thus (?). We are informed that the Territory has much mineral wealth, gold, silver, lead, iron, coal, etc.; and he puts it very mildly when he adds, "but Brigham has kept their (the Mormon's) attention to cultivation of the soil." The Saints are the most industrious, quiet and peaceable people the writer ever passed four weeks with. He discovered that the Anti-Polygamy law of Congress had never been enforced, because Brigham believes it to be unconstitutional, and no Mormon jury will convict a fellow for bigamy.

Judge Titus, I believe a very upright man, of no prejudice in favor of the Mormons, informed me that but about one-tenth (!) of the Mormons are polygamists; that he knows of cases (!) where Mormons have been prevented from taking more wives by the law of 1863 (!), and others on account of that law have separated from all but one of their wives.

The author of the Report, in the foregoing extract evidently indulges a fertile imagination. We have the best reasons for knowing that General Babcock totally misapprehended the conversation referred to, or his memory has been very defective. What Judge Titus did say was, "that in his opinion about three-tenths are practical polygamists; that he only knew of one instance where a man had put away his second, after providing for her comfort, and that if anyone had been restrained from taking more wives by the Act of 1862, he did not know it. That the law was practically a dead letter, and if it could not be enforce, it was worse than a farce to keep it on the Statute book."

Referring to Mormon outrages in the past, the Report dubiously says:

In earlier days, when these people were more isolated, that some of them, perhaps, to the knowledge of the church committed very grave crimes, I have no doubt, among the worst the Mountain Meadow massacre of 1858. I think our government, in justification of its acts and the opinion of its people, should investigate these and place the stigma where it belongs. During the rebellion I have no doubt but these people felt but little sympathy with the government, which they look upon as their persecutor.

Nevertheless, he has no doubt that if called upon they would have furnished troops to put down the Rebellion "with as much promptness as any call that was made."

He opposes coercion and recommends that civilization and education be permitted to fight out the battle with the "twin relic"—if it takes all Summer. Recommends four companies at Bridger and four companies at Camp Douglas, to look after Government property and take care of Indians.

On the whole, the Report is decidedly a non sequitur, and interesting rather from the main subject which is its topic than for any other reason.

BY PACIFIC TELEGRAPH.

[SPECIAL TO THE "DAILY UNION VEDETTE."]

New Orleans, February 11.

G. Williamson, formerly on General Polk's staff, was yesterday elected United States Senator.

Harrisburg, February 13.

Governor Geary has signed the joint resolution ratifying the Constitutional Amendment.

New York, February 14.

A special says the members of the Ways and Means Committee are greatly displeased at the announcement that they would hear no further delegations on the tariff question. There is a disposition to keep the tariff up till April. Scarcely a probability that the amendatory bank bill will be rushed in the House, and Randall's anti-bank bill certainly will not be.

George Bancroft declined the nomination as Collector of the port of Boston. Hon. D. W. Gooch and M. Clifford are strongly urged for the position.

The Herald's special says it is believed that Elliott's Louisiana Government bill will pass the Senate before the close of the week.

A Richmond special says a strong feeling of Radical Republicanism is manifested in the southwestern portion of the State, particularly those counties bordering on North Carolina. In Carroll county an organization known as "Red Strings" recently held a meeting at Hillsville, and was addressed by an ex-rebel officer. He proclaimed their affiliation to the Radical party of the North, and denounced the present Legislature as disloyal, and advocated the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment. He was particularly severe on the President, who, he said, should be impeached before there could be any security for Union men. The meeting was very demonstrative in expressions of loyalty to the present Congress.

The Tribune's special says the fifty millions Mexican loan was up before the Committee on Foreign Affairs yesterday, but as there was no prospect of getting security in the present unsettled condition of affairs, the Committee deemed it inexpedient to give the aid asked.

St. Louis, February 14.

An accident occurred to the eastward bound train, thirty miles from St. Joseph, last night, by which one person was killed and eighteen injured, some seriously.

New York, February 14.

The Post's special says the President stated yesterday that his nominations in future would be such as he could expect the Senate to confirm.

The Ways and Means Committee adhere to the Senate tariff bill as regards iron and steel. The rates on cutlery are the same as those of the old House bill.

Several Conservative Republicans had an interview with the President last evening. The President seemed anxious to meet Congress half way, but no plan was suggested which both parties could indorse.

Charleston, February 14.

At an anniversary banquet of the Chamber of Commerce last night, Governor Orr made a speech, during which he alluded to his visit to Washington, and the formation of the scheme of reconstruction already printed, which he thought could secure the support of the Conservative members of the Radical party. He was received kindly and treated courteously, and every disposition was manifested to have perfected a complete settlement. He considered that if this amendment was adopted it would produce the best results upon a considerable portion of the Radical party, and save the South from many proposed Radical measures.

Washington, February 14.

House—On motion of Schenck, the Senate bill to regulate the tenure of certain civil officers was taken from the Speaker's table. The Senate had refused to concur in the House amendment making the bill apply to Cabinet officers, and the House insisted on its amendments, and a committee of conference was asked.

The Senate joint resolution in reference to the Ocean mail service, between San Francisco and Portland, Oregon, passed.

The bill reported January 15th, from the Select Committee, on war debts of loyal States, to reimburse States that furnished troops in the Union army for advances made, was taken up. Blaine remarked that the bill provided for the issue of five per cent. bonds to the amount of one hundred and fifty millions. A motion to table was negatived, 64 to 87. A motion to refer to the Ways and Means Committee was agreed to, 81 to 47.

Senate—Wade, from the Committee on Territories, reported a bill to regulate the selection of Grand and Petit Jurors in Utah.

Conness introduced a bill authorizing the Postmaster General to invite proposals for steamship mail service, monthly trips, from San Francisco to Honolulu. No bid exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to be considered.

A motion to take up the Louisiana bill was negatived, 17 to 25. The Clerk of the House announced its refusal to recede from its amendments to the tenure of office bill. A Committee of Conference was appointed.

A SHORT HONEYMOON.—A few weeks since a young German barber of Indianapolis, led to the hymeneal altar a handsome and intelligent girl to whom he had been paying his addresses. The course of true love was not disturbed by as much as a ripple until shortly, when the knight of the razor, in returning home, discovered that his canary bird had flown, leaving nothing but the empty nest. The disconsolate barber returned to his shop, and put an end to his existence by swallowing half a pint of hair dye.

Special Correspondence.

DENVER C. T., Feb. 11, 1867.

Agreeable to promise, I now take my pen in hand to give you a few incidents connected with my trip from Salt Lake to "America." On the morning of January 2nd I took farewell to Joe Roberson, the [illegible] of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s stage at Salt Lake, and with feelings not altogether sorrowful rolled out of Zion towards my destination in the far East. My compagnons du voyage were Judge Pomeroy and Lieutenant Munson, late of the Michigan Cavalry, at Camp Douglas. Of course the first thing was to effect a thorough organization of our forces, which was perfected by placing the Lieutenant in the position of Lieutenant General commanding the expedition; the Judge was elected Medical Director, and given charge of the hospital stores, while your humble servant was honored by the office of Historian of the trip. On reaching the city limits an inspection of hospital stores was ordered, and the result showed the quantity and quality to be equal to any emergency that might arise.

At the first station out of Salt Lake we gave up our coach for a sleigh, and ten miles beyond were treated to upset No. 1, passengers, mail sacks, lunch, pistols, baggage and blankets being spilled out in the most glorious confusion; but for this mishap we were partially repaid by seeing the superintendent of the toll road and his two interesting daughters unceremoniously dumped into a convenient snowbank by the roadside. We reached Weber at dark without further accident except the loss of one package of hospital stores. At this point a terrific storm set in, and at three o'clock in the morning we were only twenty miles from Weber, and so completely drenched and benumbed by rain and cold that it was deemed advisable to lay by until daylight. A few miles west of Fort Bridger we gave up our sleigh for a lumber wagon, in which we found, after packing mail sacks, baggage, etc., a space of about three feet square for passengers and miscellaneous traps. After considerable elbowing and crowding, I settled down on some half dozen rifles and pistols, and resting my head on the sharp corner of an express box, was borne along a rough, frozen road at the rate of twelve miles an hour—a situation which I found more novel than agreeable. Upon extricating myself on arriving at Bridger, I found one foot in the Lieutenant's pocket and the other protruding from the side of a roast chicken, which had unfortunately jolted from our lunch box. At the fort we found two companies of the 18th United States Infantry, under command of Colonel Allen. Judge Carter, the popular post sutler, being East we were forced to forego the pleasure of his ever cordial welcome.

Leaving Fort Bridger at dark, Thursday night, fifteen miles were passed without accident, when one of the tires of our lumber wagon broke, and a storm coming up at the same moment added much to the interest of the occasion. An hour and a half spent in strapping on the broken tire and chaining the wheel to a stationary position, and we again rolled on as fast as our remaining three wheels would admit. Three miles beyond, we reached Black's Fork, where we found the ice overflowed, and the prospect of a safe passage decidedly dubious; but, after a somewhat unsatisfactory examination, the driver put whip to his four broncos and dashed into, and three-fourths across the ice when it gave way, plunging team and the fore wheels of the wagon into about five feet of water, and the harness breaking at the same time, we were left in a position decidedly disagreeable. The water on the ice was knee deep, but the Lieutenant and myself were forced to plunge in and unload the fore end of the wagon. Two hours hard, freezing labor enabled us to reach the shore, although it was claimed that the earnest prayers of the Judge, who had remained seated on the hind board of the wagon, assisted not a little in the attainment of the desired object.

At the next station we again laid over until daylight, in order to warm, dry our blankets, etc. Three miles from this station we met a coach, and transferring our baggage, turned it about and occupied it without noticeable incident until our arrival at Green River, Friday evening. At this point the Agent very blandly informed us that we must again take up with a lumber wagon; but this announcement elicited from our party a most vigorous protest, which, although couched in terms more plain than polite, so astonished our well meaning Agent that he hitched up the Superintendent's private sleeping coach, in which we traveled in the most comfortable manner imaginable to Washkee Station, a point which was reached about dark Saturday night. Here we again changed to a sleigh, and at daybreak were through Bridger's Pass in safety, although we had as uncomfortable a night as bad roads and worse weather could well bring about. Sunday morning found us in a comfortable coach enjoying a clear, but cold Sabbath, which was duly observed by total abstinance from profanity, (in which effort we were quite successful, as ice and wagon-tires proved faithful,) and the very enthusiastic singing of numerous Methodist revival hymns, in which our worthy representative of the legal profession took the lead. Sunday noon we dined at North Platte, and changed coaches for the last time. A few miles from this station we passed the ranch of Lieutenant Tucker, formerly of the Michigan Cavalry at Camp Douglas. He is the ranchman who shot two stage drivers a few days since, an account of which was published in the VEDETTE, of the 30th ult. I was unable to obtain many particulars of the affair, but it appears that, as usual in such cases, whisky was the cause. At the time we passed, Tucker was staying at Fort Sanders through fear of violence on the part of the overland boys.

Sunday night we passed Fort Halleck, which is now abandoned, and our experience led us to coincide with the very general idea that it is the coldest spot on the American continent. Monday was by far the most pleasant day of the trip, and we made splendid time over the Laramie Plains, and succeeded in astonishing several of the sedate females at the different stations by our somewhat boisterous jokes and songs. On these plains we passed one herd of buffalo and several flocks of antelope. Big Laramie was reached just in time for dinner. Six miles to the north of this station lies Fort Sanders, which is garrisoned by two companies of the 18th Infantry, under command of Colonel Misner. The same day we passed one company of the 2d Cavalry, which started from this post to re-inforce the garrison at Fort Laramie. Monday night we passed Fort Collins, which has, like Halleck, been abandoned as a military post, and two o'clock today (Tuesday) found our party seated at the table of the Planter's, in Denver, fast forgetting the tribulations of our journey, over a dish of steaming oysters, fresh from the shell.

Denver has undergone a material improvement since my last visit a year and a half ago. Numerous large, fine brick blocks have been erected, and another evidence of its advanced civilization is the fact that one no longer sees spacious and gorgeous gambling saloons with open fronts enticing their victims, with bands of music which kept up their harmonious strains by day and night; yet, if one feels an inclination to meet the "tiger," he has no difficulty in finding him, although in less conspicuous places than formerly.

To-day a new daily paper, called the Denver Daily, made its first appearance under very favorable auspices. It is semi-religious in its principles and neutral in politics.

I found Mrs. N. S. Leslie, formerly of the Salt Lake Theater, confined to her bed by sickness, but her numerous friends and admirers in this city, where she is, as she was in Salt Lake, a universal favorite, are sanguine that she will be upon the stage within a few days to complete her engagement, which lasts until the first May. At present the leading man at the Denver Theater is Mr. A. R. Phelps, who is also known in Salt Lake. The Irwin's opened their engagement in this city [illegible] since, and are now playing with Phelps in Othello. I learn from a reliable source that Miss Flora Bray, who is also playing in Denver, is about to marry a well known [illegible] Colonel of Montana, and will retire from the stage.

Colonel Charles H. Potter, formerly commanding the District of Utah, is now on duty with his regiment (the Eighteenth) at Fort Laramie.

I learn that the Smoky Hill stage line has been sold by Wells, Fargo & Co. to the United States Express Company, who will take possession within a few days.

The reports of Indian outrages at Bixarside station, on the Platte, and at the head of Smoky Hill river, which went over the wires a few days since, are without foundation, as I have learned since my arrival in Denver.

At this point our party separates, the Lieutenant taking the stage at six o'clock in the morning for the River, while the Judge and myself follow at four o'clock in the afternoon via the Smoky Hill route. We can only ask that the employees East may show the same skill and accommodation that we have found West. Since we left Salt Lake we have not met a bungling, intoxicated, or discourteous driver, nor a poor team, or meal, even in the classic regions of Bitter Creek, where reports had led us to believe that we would find nothing but Ben. Holladay's chicken (vulgarly called bacon in some localities); our living was strictly on the "square." In fact each employee of Wells, Fargo & Co. seemed to vie with each other in seeing who could display the highest degree of accommodation.

I. M. W.

ROW AMONG THE NEW YORK CITY FATHERS.—In the New York Common Council, on the 10th of January, a curious scene took place. The President, James G. Brinkman, had been elected by a majority of one, and was thought by his Democratic colleagues to favor the Republicans. Long before the hour of meeting the body of the chamber and the several entrances thereto were filled with an infuriated and excited mob, undoubtedly sent there for the purpose of disturbing the proceedings of the Board. After the reading of the minutes, a former candidate for the Presidency of the Board moved to strike out of the minutes so much of the same as related to the election of the President, and on his motion demanded the yeas and nays. The President ruled the gentleman out of order, and declared the minutes approved by a majority of the members of the Board so voting. An appeal was then taken from the decision of the Chair, and a scene of confusion ensued, during which the President was denounced as a perjurer, and one Councilman threw an inkstand at him, spattering him all over with ink. He drew a pistol and handed one to his Clerk, when a rush was made, and policemen entered and arrested the belligerent parties, who were released by the Mayor, after receiving a lecture from him, and promising to refrain from further riotous proceedings.

ENTERPRISING.—Messrs. Belknap, Webster, Bell and Mitchell, have secured the right of the former claimants, and procured a more liberal charter for the Idaho, Banner and Atlanta wagon road. They contemplate pushing the work forward in the spring. The distance is about seventy miles through a rough country. When completed two more mining camps will be thrown open for mills. Several mines have already been sufficiently developed for the reception of machinery in the Banner District. The Atlanta or Yuba district is too well known to need any comment at this time. Rocky Bar will be of easy access by this route from Idaho City. Whereas heretofore all teams had to travel by way of Boise City, and Big Camas prairie, a distance of nearly one hundred and fifty miles. We speak of this enterprise as a great convenience to a large number of our citizens who have interests in that direction. We have every reason to believe that the road will be pushed forward without intermission as it should be. We know the parties to be energetic and straight forward men. Our quartz men and miners generally should give them a helping hand, as it is an undertaking for the benefit of our mines generally, and several new mining camps in particular.—Idaho Times.

Local and Miscellaneous.

ADVERTISERS.—The VEDETTE is the pioneer newspaper of Utah. Its extensive circulation in every mining camp and city of Montana and Idaho, (which it gives the telegraphic despatches a whole week ahead of the Pacific papers,) makes it the most prominent medium for advertising in these four new Territories.

PRESENT, BUT NOT INVITED.—There was a party given at the Salt Lake House, Thursday evening last, which was intended to be a very select affair; but some of the boarders whose names were not on the invitation list, had, nevertheless, a strong desire to see the sights. In order to gratify their curiosity, they procured a ladder, and placing it against a door leading from the hall, from which they could overlook the gay scene, were enjoying themselves hugely without being discovered. In the midst of their enjoyment the door suddenly burst open and landed the "ladder party" in the middle of the ball room, to the utter consternation of the dancers. The individuals thus unceremoniously ushered into the midst of the assembly, without the consent of either party, gathered themselves up in a hurry and soon made themselves scarce, much chagrined at the ridiculous exhibition of themselves in which they were not invited.

THE HOWARD CASE.—The case of Geo. H. Howard, charged with taking a letter from the Post-office in this city, containing money, and appropriating the same to his own use, the writing it was not intended for him, was up yesterday before Chief Justice Titus. The witnesses were George H. Howard (the simon pure), W. H. Bright, (Postal Agent), Aaron Gove, (Deputy Postmaster), W. A. Swan, (Post-office clerk), and Watson Nesbitt. The prisoner was identified as the person who applied for and received the letter. It was also in evidence that he acknowledged the taking of the letter and the appropriation of the money to his own use. He was held to answer at the next term of the United States District Court, on the first Monday of April next. The Court reduced the bail from $1,000 to $500. The real George H. Howard was, on his own recognizance for $100, held to appear as witness for the prosecution.

POST-OFFICE IMPROVEMENTS.—We notice that quite an improvement is being made in the Post-office of this city, which will add much to facilitating the assorting of the mails. A rack is being built with appropriate boxes for receiving the mails which are to be distributed. These boxes are of a square funnel shape, with an opening at the bottom, to which the various mail bags are to be attached to receive the mails. This will save much time and is an improvement on the old plan. There is also a new window adjoining the delivery boxes," which is intended for the transaction of all business relating to money orders and registered letters. This is convenient for those who desire to transact business at that nature, and it will avoid the delay of waiting at the general delivery window. This is a move in the right direction, and we like enterprise, and we take pleasure in noticing it.

A LADY VISITOR.—We had a call yesterday from one of Maine's fair daughters, who in company with her husband visited our office. The lady expressed her desire to try her hand at setting type. Adam, one of our gallant compositors, stepped aside from his "case" and handed her his "composing stick," which she handled as if she had seen one before, and for a short moment her dainty fingers were rapidly "sticking" type as if she had been a member of the craft. The old (?) "typos" in the office stared with amazement, the foreman smiled, and the "devil" grinned. In a few minutes the article was finished and placed on the "galley," in true printer's style. When the lady left, Adam exclaimed, "If I had a wife who could set type like that, I could make double wages!"

A SHAVE IN A BARBER SHOP.—A to C.—Were you at the Ball last night?

B.—Yes, for a short time.

A.—Well, how did you enjoy yourself?

B.—Not much; I left as soon as possible.

A.—Why, were you not invited?

B.—No, I belonged to the "scaling" party.

A.—You left suddenly, did you?

B.—You bet.

MISSING.—A young man by the name of Parker, (son of a Mr. Parker, who is, or has been in the employ of Wells, Fargo & Co.,) has strayed away from home about ten days since and has not been heard from since. It is feared that he is partially deranged, and it is feared has perished in the cold storm of last week.

ANOTHER NEWSPAPER.—It is rumored, says one of our exchanges, that John Morrissey, Esq., will start a newspaper in Troy, New York.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of pub. docs. from the Hon. John Conness, United States Senator from California.

FOR RENT.—Small house to let on Emigrant street. See advertisement. fe4-tf

MEXICAN INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT.—A company has been formed, with an office in the city of Guadalajara and a branch office in San Francisco, for the navigation of Lake Chapala, a sheet of water about 66 miles in length, and situated at a distance of 40 miles from Guadalajara, the second city in size in Mexico. The lake is surrounded by numerous towns and villages, and is bordered with some of the most productive farms in that Republic. Besides the navigation of the lake and the river Grande, an outlet which will admit vessels within 15 miles of the city named, it is proposed to extend a railroad from Guadalajara to the lake, and to construct two iron steamboats to ply on the latter. The principal productions of the country contiguous to the lake and the Rio Grande are corn, wheat beans, fish, hay, straw, salt, timber, charcoal, firewood, wool, sugar, coffee, rice, cotton, etc. A. E. Cavaillon is the Superintendent of the company, which has a capital stock of $100,000, with power to increase to $500,000. If ever Mexico shall obtain the blessings of permanent peace, there is no country in the world more attractive for enterprises of this character. The roads are in a wretched conditon, and inland transportation is insecure and very expensive. Internal improvements requiring so small an outlay of capital as the one under notice, will be of great value to the country, and ought to be very productive as an investment of capital. The great thing wanted in Mexico is exemption from the curse of petty revolutions and a well established Government. A system of internal improvements will then be inaugurated, commanding the confidence of capitalists in other countries, and securing for that Republic a new career of prosperity.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Two men calling themselves physicians, the wife of one of them and a married woman residing on Sixth street were arrested this evening on the charge of drugging the widow of an actor for the purpose of outraging her person. Judge Rix, thinking the statement so improbable as to warrant a suspicion of her mind being unsound, allowed all the defendants to go at liberty on their own recognizance.

Charles Kinsley obtained a judgment for $7,500 from a jury in the Twelfth District Court to-day, against a leading Front street house, for damages through the closing of his store at Pescadero, under attachment for a debt which had been fully secured by a mortgage on real estate. They assigned a part of the claim to a third party, who took out the attachment. The store was closed less than a week, but the jury rendered exemplary damages.

A CHARLESTON TARGET.—During the siege of Charleston the tall spire of St. Michael's Church was often singled out by the men who manned Gilmore's "Swamp Angel," as a target, but they never yet struck it, according to the Charleston Courier, which says that the spire is yet unharmed, though the walls are fractured by shells. The old church has been renovated, and a costly stained glass window, from Boston, adorns the church. The Courier adds:

It will, perhaps, not be amiss in this connection to state that the chime of bells which were sent to their original foundry in England, to be remodeled, have been shipped from Liverpool, and are now daily expected. The citizens of Charleston will once more be regaled by the sweet sound of their old and loved bells, and the Sabbath will have more of an air of sanctity than it has long enjoyed, when the call of prayer is sounded by the brazen tongues. St. Michael's is the oldest church now standing in the city. It was designed by Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's, London. The corner stone was laid in 1752, and ten years was occupied in its erection, public service not being held in it until the 1st of February, 1762. All of the material used in its construction was imported from abroad, even the wood, mostly cypress and cedar, being brought from the Bermudas.

THE CROSBY OPERA HOUSE.—The Connecticut Mutual Insurance Company of Hartford have a mortgage of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars on the Crosby Opera House in Chicago. The mortgage was taken nearly three years ago with nearly five years to run, but last summer they agreed to accept payment and raise the mortgage whenever the drawing of the lottery should take place. As the lottery circulars stipulated that a deed of the property should be given to the winner free of incumbrance, the mortgage, it is expected, will be raised within a few days.—Louisville Journal.

At Frankfort a few nights ago, the "Merchant of Venice" was played at one of the theatres, and when in the trial scene, the Jew demanded what he claimed from his debtor, and the latter replied, "A pound of flesh," a man in the gallery cried out, "And eight cigars." The Frankfort people applauded this allusion to the Prussian bill of fare during the war: the Prussians present lost their temper; a disturbance ensued, and the police cleared the house.

The London Times admits that to-day no one nation is strong enough or reckless enough to give a decided no to American dictation. England will have a practical example some day. As it is, she will pay the Alabama claims and never dispute about the interest.

Nathaniel W. Morse, of Norridgewalk, Me., has recovered one cent damages from thirteen citizens of the town of Skowhegan, who was forced by them to cheer the American flag after he said he was glad of the assassination of President Lincoln.

There have thoughtful widows in Virginia. The Petersburg Express tells of one who recently, while buying her wedding trousseau, also purchased a tombstone to be placed over the grave of her late husband.

A. T. Stewart is about to retire from active business. We believe he is not worth more than $50,000,000 and should think he would remain in business until he had amassed a competency.

A woman in New Britain, Con., recently became enraged at her husband for some cause or other, and in revenge rushed out of doors and seated herself in a snow bank, where she remained until nearly frozen.

A Good Toast.—At a recent railway festival the following striking sentiment was given: "Our mothers—the only faithful tenders who never misplaced a switch."

It is estimated that the health of American women has improved twenty-five per cent. since they commenced wearing thick shoes.

James Robinson, the famous bareback rider, is an immense card in Havana. His salary is $900 per week in gold.
